World Economic Forum Global Risks

Perception Survey 2024-2025

The diagram illustrates a complex network of global risks, with nodes representing different risk categories and lines representing their interconnectedness. The nodes are color-coded: red, orange, purple, and blue. Four nodes are highlighted with red ovals, indicating a specific focus or cluster of risks. The nodes and their connections are as follows:

- Highlighted Nodes (Red Ovals):
  - Intrastate violence (Orange node)
  - Misinformation and disinformation (Purple node)
  - Societal polarization (Red node)
  - Erosion of human rights and/or civic freedoms (Red node)
- Other Nodes:
  - State-based armed conflict (Orange node)
  - Biological, chemical or nuclear weapons or hazards (Orange node)
  - Censorship and surveillance (Purple node)
  - Online harms (Purple node)
  - Adverse outcomes of AI technologies (Purple node)
  - Cyber espionage and warfare (Purple node)
  - Crime and illicit (Blue node)
  - Disruptions to critical infrastructure (Blue node)
  - Involuntary migration or displacement (Red node)
  - Loss of life and collapse (Red node)
  - Zoonotic diseases (Red node)

The network shows a high degree of interconnectedness, with many nodes having multiple connections to other nodes, suggesting a complex and interrelated system of global risks.

Albert Rösti im Fake-News-Zug

Der Medienminister eröffnet in Brugg einen neuen Wagen des rollenden Klassenzimmers der SBB.

David Walgis

Albert Rösti steht in der hintersten Reihe und richtet sich auf. Vor ihm gruppieren sich Schulkinder, elf, vielleicht zwölf Jahre alt, und lachen in die Kamera. «Ein Bild ist auf Whatsapp, Instagram oder Snapchat schnell geteilt und weitergeschickt», sagt der Moderator, der die Klasse durch den Zugwagen führt. Das Klassenfoto mit dem Bundesrat ploppt an einer Wand auf Bildschirmen auf. Und über allen Bildern steht eine markige Schlagzeile: «Schülergang terrorisiert ganzes Dorf», «Cybermobbing – eine Gruppe jugendlicher Täter wird verhaftet.» Ein Raum weiter, zehn Minuten später. Das Bild erscheint auf
